Dear Captain Grimm:

In re S.I.D. FILE NO. 100-3710

The Special Investigations Division of the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office has completed its investigation of the October 26, 1984, fatal shooting of Glenn Joseph Gorio by Los Angeles Deputy Sheriff D. Furmanski. The Sheriff's Department reported the shooting to us on November 1, 1984. In reaching our conclusions in this matter, we have read and considered the deputy-involved shooting report prepared by Sergeants G. Parra and L. Tedesco of the Sheriff's Homicide Bureau, as well as the reports prepared by our Bureau of Investigation. We have also read and considered the autopsy report written by Deputy Medical Examiner Eva T. Heuser, M.D. No additional investigation is required to resolve the issues presented by this case.

FACTUAL ANALYSIS

On October 26, 1984, members of the Sheriff's Special Enforcement Bureau went to a residence at [redacted] Mulholland Highway in Malibu to serve a narcotics search warrant. The warrant had been obtained by Sheriff's narcotics detectives after an investigation established there was probable cause to believe that the owner of the residence, Glenn Joseph Gorio, age 27, had been selling cocaine. Municipal Court Judge John Merrick of the Malibu Judical District had authorized nightime service when he signed the search warrant. A background investigation of Gorio had revealed that he employed an armed bodyguard at his residence which contained a large gun room where numerous handguns and shotguns were stored. Gorio had resisted arrest on a previous occasion and was known to take target practice in his backyard. Because of the potential danger, it was decided that deputies assigned to the Special Enforcement Bureau (S.E.B.) would make the initial entry into the residence.

Gorio's residence was located in a rural setting at the end of a long driveway. At 4 a.m., on the morning of October 26, uniformed S.E.B. deputies began to approach the residence. As they did so, an individual came out of the residence, looked around, and then went back inside. The approaching deputies repeatedly yelled, "Sheriff's Department. We have a search warrant. Open the door."

When they reached the front door, the deputies pounded on it and repeated the same statement in a voice loud enough that neighbors heard them. When there was no response from inside, the deputies forced their way inside. As they entered, they detonated a concussion grenade to create a diversion.

Deputy D. Furmanski had been assigned to secure the gun room on the second story. Immediately after entry was made, Deputy Furmanski ascended the stairs, followed by three other deputies. As he did so, he heard an alarm ringing from the gun room. When he reached the top of the stairs, he saw the gun room door was open. Inside was an open safe containing numerous handguns and rifles. Deputy Furmanski heard a male voice say, "Who are you? Who are you?" Deputy Furmanski shouted back, "Sheriff's Department. Sheriff's Department."

The deputy looked down the hallway and saw Gorio standing in front of the master bedroom holding a pistol in a two-handed grip with his arms extended. The pistol was pointed directly at Deputy Furmanski who ducked into the gun room for cover while yelling, "He's got a gun. He's got a gun." As Deputy Furmanski ducked for cover, Gorio fired one round at him. The bullet lodged in the hallway wall several feet from Furmanski and the three deputies who had followed him up the stairs. After Gorio fired, Deputy Furmanski peeked around the corner and saw that Gorio had partially concealed himself behind the master bedroom doors, while still pointing the pistol at Deputy Furmanski. Deputy Furmanski, who was armed with an automatic rifle, fired a rapid burst of 12 shots at Gorio who then retreated into the master bedroom. Shortly afterwards, deputies entered the bedroom and found Gorio lying dead on the bedroom floor, having suffered multiple gunshot wounds.

A 9mm semi-automatic pistol was found near Gorio's body. Investigators also recovered from the hallway wall the bullet Gorio had fired at Deputy Furmanski. Subsequent ballistics analysis determined that it had been fired from the pistol found near Gorio's body. Approximately 40 handguns and rifles were found in the house. Most were in the gun room, but loaded weapons were also found near various doors and windows. One pistol was equipped with a silencer. Two Taser guns, a cross bow, and six nunchakus were found in the house One-half ounce of cocaine was found in Gorio's bedroom. A small amount of marijuana, an ounce of methamphetamine, and miscellaneous narcotics paraphernalia were also recovered.

The only other person found in the house was Gorio's [redacted], [redacted] After speaking to her attorney, she refused to give a statement to investigators. An individual was seen running from the rear of the residence as the deputies entered the front door. This person has never been identified.

None of the other deputies were in a position to see Gorio fire at Deputy Furmanski. At least ten deputies reported hearing a single gunshot seconds before they heard a burst of fire from Deputy Furmanski's automatic weapon. Three neighbors also stated they heard a single shot followed by a rapid fire burst of shots.

On October 27, 1984, Dr. Eva T. Heuser, Deputy Medical Examiner for the Coroner's Office, performed an autopsy on Gorio's remains. She ascribed the cause of death to gunshot wounds to the chest. Dr. Heuser found that Gorio had been struck by 6 bullets, two of which passed through both lungs and his heart.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

California law permits the use of deadly force in one's self-defense if it reasonably appears to the person claiming the right of self-defense that he is about to suffer bodily injury or death. (People v. Williams (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 731; CALJIC 5.30; Penal Code Sections 692, 693; People v. Holt (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 59.) Deputy Furmanski has stated he shot Gorio after Gorio had fired at him and while Gorio was pointing a pistol in his direction. The statements of many other witnesses, as well as the physical evidence, strongly corroborate Deputy Furmanski's version of the shooting. We have found no evidence which contradicts his version. The use of deadly force was reasonably necessary to prevent Gorio from shooting Deputy Furmanski or the other deputies. Therefore, we conclude that Deputy Furmanski was acting in lawful self-defense at the time he shot and killed Glenn Joseph Gorio.

Accoringly, we will take no further action in this case and our file is closed.

Very truly yours,

On 10-26-84 at 0545 hours, Investigators were detailed from their respective residences to a residence at [redacted] Mulholland Highway, Malibu, county area, to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death of Suspect Gorio.

Investigators arrived at 0715 hours and contacted witness Deputy McCann from Malibu Narcotics Detail. Deputy McCann told Investigators that at approximately 0400 hours they had attempted to serve a high risk entry search warrant on the suspect's residence. Due to information in his possession, of the suspect's prior armed and dangerous reputation, a Special Weapons Team was requested to make entry.

Deputy McCann and the narcotics personnel stood by on the main roadway approximately 350 yards north of the residence. The house is situated downhill from the roadway with the front door facing west. At this position they waited while Special Weapons Team personnel stated their purpose, and receiving no response, gained entry by use of a battering ram to break down the front door. Deputy McCann heard glass breaking and then the explosion of a diversion device. After a short pause, a single shot was fired which was answered by rapid fire.

Deputy McCann waited until 0600 hours on the highway until he received information that the residence was secure and that a lady, later identified as the suspect's [redacted], [redacted] FW/[redacted], was apprehended and detained for transportation to Malibu Sheriff's Station.

Upon entering the residence, Deputy McCann was told that the suspect was in the upstairs northwest bedroom dead from gunshot wounds. He had been previously pronounced dead by Deputy Adams at 0415 hours.

Deputy McCann confirmed the victim's death due to the lack of vital signs at this time. He subsequently secured the residence and notified Malibu Station and awaited the arrival of Homicide Investigators. Deputy McCann's observations and actions are detailed in a first and supplemental report which when completed will be made a part of this file.

Investigators noticed that the suspect's residence is a three-story single family ranch style home located downhill and south of [REDACTED] Entry is gained to the property through a sliding metal electronic gate. Beyond the gate is an asphalt roadway leading to the front of the residence in a winding fashion for approximately 350 yards. There is a two-car garage to the immediate west as you face the residence. The front door is on the east portion of the house with the door in an alcove facing toward the west.

There is a 51 by 23 inch window to the west of the front door which Investigators noted had been broken inward and that the screen from this window was lying on the floor inside the billiard room of the residence. To the east of the front door there is another 51 by 35 inch window which was broken from the inside out. The planter box below this window was full of broken glass.

Upon entering the front door, there is an 53-inch long by three-inch wide piece of the door frame lying on the floor of the entryway. It was evident that the doorjamb had been broken inward by force of the battering ram.

Turning right or south in the entryway, Investigators noted that the plants and nicknacks on the shelves in this area had been knocked over from their original positions, probably due to the force of the first M116A flashbang diversion device which had been thrown into the entryway after the door had been knocked in.

The first door in the entryway leads to the west directly into a room containing a full size billiard table and would be considered a game room. This is the room in which the window screen had fallen to the carpet on the inside. The billiard table had several handguns and a rifle on it that had been collected from various first floor locations by Special Weapons Team members and placed under a buffet against the north wall. They were placed on the billiard table by Sergeant Avila for identification and photo purposes.

There is a dining room adjacent to and south of this game room. West of the game room there is a hallway running north and south. As you enter the hallway directly to the west there is a door leading to a full bath with a shower. Turning right or north in this hallway you find a door which leads into the garage.

Turning left or south in this hallway you would walk down approximately ten feet to a doorway which leads into an office area containing a desk, sofa, and an upright safe in the southeast corner. This office has doors leading to a common raised wooden patio. On the northwest part of this office there is a 3/4 bath.

Returning to the entryway walking directly south and to the left or east, you find a set of stairs. The southernmost stairway leads down to a sunken large living room. The northernmost stairway leads up to a landing and continues to the second story.

The kitchen is located directly south of these stairways and has a door leading out to the common patio which runs the full length of the south side of the house.

On the stairs leading up from the entryway to the first landing, Investigators noticed the debris of the fragments of cardboard material from the explosion of the diversion device. These pieces of material were evident all the way up to the landing on the second floor.

From this landing there is a second set of stairs that lead in a westerly direction to the second floor proper and as you enter the second floor at the top of the stairs immediately to your left or south, there is a spiral staircase leading to the third floor den.

Continuing on the second floor in a northerly direction at the top of the stairs, there is a door leading to the gunsafe room which angles in a northwesterly direction following the curve in the hallway. It is in the area both inside and outside of this doorway leading into this gunsafe room where the expended 9mm cartridges fired by the deputy's automatic weapon were found as listed.

Immediately across the hallway from this doorway is the area in which Victims Henderson, Adams, and Pattullo, were standing when the suspect fired the round that was recovered from the wall in a direct line of fire to the position in which they were standing. Had it not been for the round expending itself in the beam from where it was subsequently recovered by Sergeant Robinson, the intended victims could have received possible fatal injuries.

Victim Furmanski was standing directly inside this angled doorway to the gunsafe room when the initial shot was fired in his direction and it was from this point that he stepped into the hallway and fired his 9mm H&K rifle which ejected the recovered cartridges in the position that they were previously noted as having been recovered.

In this room which contained the gunsafe, upon entering it, immediately to your right, there is a large upright chest containing numerous knives, daggers, and cutting devices of all various lengths and sizes:

Against the inside east wall there is a roll-top desk. Against the northeast corner there is an upright six-foot safe which had the front door standing open exposing numerous handguns including a .22 caliber automatic equipped with a silencer.

Directly west of this safe there is a table which had what appeared to be Samuri swords and other Japanese type artifacts.

Against the southwest wall of the room is a rifle locker with six shotguns in it including the 12 gauge automatic with Belmont Police Department engraved.

Sergeant Robinson, after his arrival at approximately 0930 hours, in addition to removing and recovering the projectile fired by the suspect, took charge of recovering any illegal firearms from the room containing the gunsafe.

Sergeant Robinson also took charge of all the expended casings and all the expended slugs found in the hallway and in the master bedroom where the suspect was found. He further took charge and possession of the weapon found next to the suspect's body and listed as Evidence Held Item #2.

Prior to leaving the area containing the hallway in front of and the entryway into the gunsafe room, all of the expended cartridges were listed by number and measured in their locations by both Investigators and Staff Artists and photographed in their positions prior to being recovered by Sergeant Robinson. His actions and observations are detailed in a supplemental report which when completed will be made a part of this file.

Continuing in a westerly direction down the hall toward the master bedroom on your immediate right is a glass turtle aquarium. This glass turtle cage was ten inches south of the north hallway wall and three feet and seven inches north of the south wall and was three feet and nine inches in height.

There is a bullet hole in the southwest corner of this six-sided glass container which was one foot and eleven inches up from the base of the glass and one foot and eleven inches from the north wall and three feet and seven inches from the south wall and up from the floor three feet and eleven inches. This hole appeared to have been made from an east to west direction and was 2 1/2 by 2 1/4 inches in size.

It should be noted that it was in the direct line of fire between the position in which Deputy Furmanski was standing when he fired and where the suspect would have been standing when he was hit.

Members of the Special Weapons Team, after returning the suspect's fire, lobbed a tear gas hand grenade down the hallway towards the suspect's bedroom which detonated and came to rest near the north wall of the hallway immediately outside of the suspect's bedroom door. The firing pins and spoon of the diversion device were found on the landing leading to the second floor and on the carpet in the hallway.

Immediately west in the hallway from this turtle container there is another table type piece of furniture. There is a door leading south in this hallway to a bedroom which contained a couch along the west wall and a bed against the south wall. There is a dresser against the east wall and at the southeast corner of this bedroom there is a large walk-in closet.

Returning to the hallway and continuing west immediately to your left turning south is a narrow hallway leading to a 3/4 bath. Looking towards the west immediately in the hallway in front of this 3/4 bath, Investigators see the entrance to the suspect's bedroom. Entrance can be gained through a shuttered door which splits in the middle and opens inward toward the master bedroom. On the right of this doorjamb leading into the bedroom there is a bullet hole in the plaster which went through and through this four-inch wall and continued in a trajectory toward the west wall of the suspect's bedroom where it impacted again. This hole was found three feet and 8 1/2 inches up from the floor and two inches north of the doorjamb and nine inches south of the north wall and it was four feet and 2 1/2 inches down from the ceiling.

There is another bullet hole located 23 inches up from the floor and one-half inch south of the north wall and six feet down from the ceiling on the exterior wall leading to the bedroom.

There is another bullet hole 24 inches up from the floor and 4 1/2 inches south of the north wall and five feet and eleven inches down from the ceiling.

There were numerous bullet holes on the right side of the double door leading into the bedroom which were fired from an east to west direction. This right double door is 23 1/2 by 80 inches. There is a bullet hole seven inches from the south side and 32 inches up from the floor of this door. There is another bullet hole located four inches south of the north side and 38 inches up from the floor of this same door. There is another bullet hole three inches south of the north part of the door and 41 inches up from the floor.

There is another bullet hole twelve and one-half inches south of the north side and 45 inches from the bottom of the right door.

There is another bullet hole twelve and one-half inches south of the north side and 47 inches up from the floor on the right side of the door.

Another bullet hole is located seven and one-half inches south of the north side of this door and 49 and one-half inches up from the floor.

Immediately inside and to the right side of the double door leading to the bedroom there is a doorway leading immediately to the north inside to a walk-in closet. On this west doorjamb of the closet entry there is a bullet hole seventeen and one-half inches up from the floor.

Continuing into the bedroom in a westerly direction in a direct line of fire from where the previous holes were described, there is a hole in a television set which is on a wall unit 35 inches up from the floor and the hole is located twelve feet and three inches south of the north wall and 62 inches down from the ceiling. The inside west wall of the bedroom is mirrored and there are numerous bullet holes in this wall in a direct line which would be consistent with the bullet holes in the entry door to the bedroom. One is located 45 1/2 inches up from the floor and four feet and two inches down from the ceiling and eleven feet and nine inches south of the north wall.

There is another bullet hole eight feet north of the fireplace and two feet and four inches up from the floor in the west wall. Also in the west wall at a position eight feet and seven inches north of the fireplace and two feet and five inches up from the floor is another bullet hole.

There is a bullet hole eight feet and seven inches north of the fireplace and two feet and ten inches up from the floor also in the west wall.

At a position eight feet and seven inches north of the fireplace and one foot and ten inches up from the floor on the west wall is another bullet hole. Nine feet north of the fireplace and one foot and five inches up from the floor on the west wall is another bullet hole.

On the southern half of the entry door there is a metal locking device which enters the upper part of the doorjamb which appears to have been broken as there was a piece of wood approximately eight inches long missing from this part of the door indicating that it had been forced open inward.

As described upon entering the bedroom through the double doors immediately to your right is the walk-in closet and approximately six feet into the bedroom there is a hall leading north and south. .

The suspect was lying nude on the floor in a position with his head face down nine feet from the north wall. The entire body is in a northwesterly position and the head is four feet and eleven inches from the west wall. The suspect's head was lying one-foot and four inches south of the southernmost portion of the bed frame. The suspect's right elbow was located eleven inches south of the bed frame. The suspect's right foot is located 36 inches north of the south wall and six inches south of the north wall of the entry hallway. Distance to the suspect's head from the westernmost wall is eight feet. The suspect appeared to have sustained a gunshot wound to his left thigh area, the right of the chest near the nipple, his right bicep, and the left forearm.

There is a piece of black cloth directly east of the suspect's right foot. Next to this black cloth is a white metal ring with numerous small clear stones. This cloth and ring were placed on a tray next to the couch against the east wall by Investigators.

The expended slugs in the bedroom were all measured, numbered, and photographed prior to their recovery by Sergeant Robinson.

There was a blanket on the floor directly south of the suspect's body, and there was a purplish colored pillow underneath his upper torso. His head was lying next to a wood carving of a large anteater at the foot of his bed. There was a .12 gauge Ethica shotgun recovered by Sergeant Robinson from the northwest corner of the bedroom. This shotgun, a Model 37 Featherlight, serial [redacted], had an extended magazine tube and contained four live slugs and three #4 shots plus one in the chamber, and a 380 Browning, Model BDA, 380 automatic, serial # [redacted] with a round in the chamber and a fully loaded magazine which was recovered from the headboard of the suspect's bed.

Deputy Coroner Campbell who arrived at 1105 hours, accompanied by Coroner's photographer Willis, was unable to conduct his examination of the deceased until the arrival of a Coroner's supervisor. At approximately 1245 hours, at which time Deputy Coroner Dean Gilmore arrived, and in his presence the suspect was rolled over and it was determined that at 1312 hours the environmental temperature was 71 degrees in the bedroom and at 1316 hours the suspect's liver temperature was 91 degrees.

Additionally it was noted that the suspect had a grazing wound on the back side of his right hand, an entry wound in the right bicep, the right breast, the right wrist, the right arm, the left bicep, the left forearm, and the left thigh. There was also two three inch grazing lacerations approximately 1/8 inch deep and 1/2 inch wide across the suspect's buttocks. These grazing wounds were parallel to the ground and approximately twelve inches from each other. Deputy Coroner Campbell subsequently took charge of the suspect's remains for transportation to the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner.

Investigators were informed that the next of kin, ████ ████████ of the suspect, was informed of his death at 1330 hours by Deputy Hill of Malibu patrol.

After Investigators determined that all essential photographs were taken by Latent Print Deputy Lowry and that Graphic Artists Shannon and Stewart had completed their measurements and Sergeant Robinson had retrieved all the firearms and evidence, the residence was turned back over to Deputy McCann from Narcotics Bureau in order that they could continue with their search of the residence for narcotics evidence as per their search warrant.

Investigators were later informed that a small amount of cocaine, approximately one-half ounce, was found in a nightstand on the west side of the bed in the suspect's bedroom.

Investigators determined that the suspect fired one round from the weapon he held and that Victim Deputy Furmanski returned fire with twelve 9mm rounds. The bullet fired by the suspect and the casing were recovered and all 12 rounds fired by the Special Weapons Team deputy were accounted for.

Investigators observed prior to leaving that a diversion device had, in fact, been detonated on the third floor as evidenced by the pins, spoon, and debris from the cardboard portions spewn throughout the floor.

On 10-26-84 at 1330 hours, Investigators interviewed Witness ████ ██████ at her residence which is situated due ████ and on a higher elevation that the suspect's residence and from which she has an unobstructed view of his entire layout. She told Investigators that she was awakened at approximately 0230 hours on 10-26-84 by a phone call from the deputy sheriffs who had called to inform her that they were coming by to serve a search warrant on her neighbor. She stated that this was done with her prior approval as she had been cooperating with Intelligence and Narcotics investigators in the surveillance of the suspect's activities along with her Witness a retired fire captain.

She stated that a large contingency of deputies arrived on her property at 0330 hours and then unloaded from a closed van and at approximately 0400 hours, went to the suspect's house. At this time she stated it was dark and that she and her husband and her daughter were upstairs and that it was so quiet you could hear a pin drop.
